Have you ever stopped long enough to calculate what your choices are worth in terms of dollars. I would guess that 99.5% of all Appomattox farmers are growing crops and livestock in order to make money. If this is a correct assumption, let me point out what choices can mean to you and your family.

The preliminary results of 1975 corn trials have been published. At Blackstone, the top corn variety produced 110 bushels and bottom variety produced 59 bushels-a difference of 51 bushels. If corn is worth $2.50 a bushel there's a difference in varieties of $127.50 per acre. This corn received 100#N and 50 # P and K.

At the Orange Station the top variety yielded 195 bushels and low variety 111 bushels-a difference of 84 bushels, again with a $2.50 per unit value there's a difference of $210 per acre. Silage yields were also collected at the Orange Station. The top performing variety was 26.0 tons per acre and the lowest 13.7 tons or a difference of 12.3 tons. Using $20 per ton as value the top performing variety was worth $246 more. These yields were obtained using 150# N and 50# P and K.

In the 1975 Flue Cured Tobacco Trials the top dollar value variety was $2967 per acre and the lowest $2407 or a difference of $560 per acre. Again, there is a difference in varieties.

The November Artificial Insemination Sire Summaries for Holstein bulls lists the top predicted milk increase at +1779 pounds compared with a 348 pounds for lowest performing bull, a difference of 2118 pounds. The predicted $ ranged from a high of $138 to a -$44, a difference of $182. Like crop varieties there is a difference in bulls.

As farm managers the big effort in 1976 should be to manage for profits. The choices you make in the coming weeks will determine the financial rewards you can expect from your efforts.

From time to time over the past several years we've attempted to keep farm managers informed about OSHA requirements.

Pennsylvania reports that two OSHA inspectors visited a greenhouse-garden center in the eastern part of that state. The inspectors "found" a number of problems-enough to warrent 18 violations. Each violation might result in $1000 fine. The owner has 15 days to appeal.

1. Hoses on the floor. 2. Wet floor. The inspectors' recommendation was to install a false floor, or wear boots. 3. Fire extinguisher. 4. Assorted electrical violations, including shield on exhaust fans, circulating pumps. 5. Ladder on the ground. 6. Pile of gravel outside the greenhouse. 7. Miscellaneous equipment on ground. 8. Storage of plastic pots on a cooler. 9. Hanging baskets over the aisle. 10. Temick treated hanging baskets over walk areas.

The owner did pass the pesticide storage inspection. He had a locked compartment and the key was in his pocket. There was also a sign posted that identified the pesticide storage area.

This report is not to frighten anyone, but to remind again that your operation can be inspected and penalties can be applied. We'll be seeing and hearing of more of these actions as enforcement is increased.

"Tweet Tweet" - The Pet Dove

Mrs. Hazel Buchanan of Largo, Florida and of Appomattox was by the TIMES-VIRGINIAN recently to show the picture above of her little pet dove, "Tweet Tweet". While at her home in Florida, the little dove fell out of its nest and Mrs. Buchanan took it in and raised it. Each time she would let the bird outside, she only had to whistle and it would come to her. Mrs. Gladys Turnes of Amherst, formerly of Stonewall, visited Mrs. Buchanan in Florida recently and the photo above was taken of "Tweet Tweet" perched on her head. According to Mrs. Buchanan the dove was very friendly and really was a lot of company for her.
